WAS HIS LAST VISIT

To Old Home—Mr. Frank Torian Dies Near Dixon.

Mr. Frank Torian, of near Dixon, Tenn., formerly a well-known citizen of this county, died Saturday after an illness of about a month of cancer of the stomach. Mention was made in the Kentuckian since Christmas of Mr. Torian's visit to his old home here, and the news of his death will be learned with surprise, as well as regret. Mr. Torian was a half-brother of Messrs. J. B. A. V. and R. O. Torian, and J. O. Cooper, of this city. He was 71 years old and a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian church. He was a Confederate soldier and lifelong Democrat. About twenty-five years ago Mr. Torian left Hopkinsville and located near Dixon, where he had resided ever since. Last month Mr. Torian visited his old home here for the first time since his removal from this county. He leaves a wife and several children. Mr. Torian was a successful farmer and influential citizen, who was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him.

CANNING FACTORY ON TAPIS.

R. E. Sturgis, of Chicago, Working up the Company.

FINE OPENING HERE.

Prominent Local Capitalists Are Interested in the Movement.

The long-felt need of a canning factory in Hopkinsville seems about to be realized. From time to time there has been much talk of an industry of this kind, but it has heretofore ended in talk. Recently Judge W. T. Fowler and Mr. W. R. Brumfield have been taking an interest in the proposed enterprise and have succeeded in enlisting the interest of Mr. R. E. Sturgis, of Chicago, a practical man of large experience in the canning business. He represents the Chicago Building and Manufacturing Company and is in the city this week for the purpose of organizing a company to build and operate a canning factory here. Mr. Sturgis says Hopkinsville is an ideal location for this line of industries and he is meeting with such encouragement that the factory is almost a certainty.

The purpose is to capitalize at $15,000 and get as much of the stock as possible subscribed by local capitalists. The plant will be built on the single machine system, with a capacity of from 20,000 to 25,000 cans daily. It will employ from 50 to 100 hands, many of them women and children. The factory can be operated six months of the year canning vegetables and fruits and the rest of the time in canning hominy, light meats, fowls, etc.

The principal vegetables to be canned will be corn, tomatoes, sweet potatoes, beans, peas, pumpkins, squash, asparagus and practically all fruits raised.

The establishment of such an enterprise of this kind here, affording a ready market for such products, will greatly stimulate market gardening, truck farming and fruit raising, industries that are bringing vast wealth to other less favored sections. There is a demand for the output of all such factories that always exceeds the supply. A similar factory at Humboldt, Tenn., spent $80,000 last season for raw materials.

Hopkinsville is situated in a fine farming section, with excellent shipping facilities and desirable sites are to be had upon most favorable terms.

EVANGELIST BARNES

Will Begin a Meeting at the Court House Tonight.

Rev. Geo. O. Barnes, once a famous evangelist, but who has of late years been a sort of independent preacher, will preach at the Court House tonight and begin a series of meetings. Mr. Barnes is 73 years of age, but is still active and vigorous. He has preached in 97 of the 119 counties of the State and expects to preach in the other 22. He depends upon voluntary contributions to defray the expenses of his meetings. His sermons are in a great measure a defense of his new doctrine, which he espoused when he left the Presbyterian church several years ago.

THE HOLY CITY.

Large Audience Greatly Pleased With the Religious Play.

Concerning "The Holy Cith," which will shortly be presented at Holland's Opera House, the Daily Capital, of Vincennes, Ind., says:

Before an audience that almost completely filled McJimsey's theatre and that contained persons of all classes, "The Holy City" was presented Saturday night in a manner that shows the play to rank as one of the prettiest of any religious play ever presented in this country. Interest in the characters and in the play begins at the rise of the curtain and not until the curtain is rung down on the last act is it allowed to lag.

The play, with the exception of a little love affair that runs through it, closely follows the Bible just previous to and shortly after the crucifixion, and is so different from the average run of plays that notwithstanding the gruesome scene where the head of John the Baptist is brought in to the center of the stage, it is perfectly delightful to witness. The scenery used during the production is all that is required, and several settings are as handsome as carried by any company. Although not on as large a scale as "Ben Hur," the production, as a whole, is equally as entertaining. It was well acted Saturday night and given with such life that the large audience present scarcely realized that three hours were used in giving the production.

A special committee has been appointed at Owensboro to investigate alleged rottenness in police circles. Owensboro seems to be trying to put on airs like the big cities.

SENATOR DANIEL

Very Much Interested in the Gaines Tobacco Bill.

Congressman Gaines, of Tennessee, has enlisted the interest of Senator John W. Daniel in behalf of the bill passed by the House last year, regulating tobacco taxation. The following letter has been received by Mr. Gaines:

Hon. John Wesley Gaines, Washington, D. C.

My Dear Sir:

I am much interested in the bill (H. R. 14896) entitled "An Act for the Relief of Tobacco Growers," which passed the House April 18, 1904, and in behalf of which you have appeared before a sub-committee of the Committee on Finance of the Senate. Your evident familiarity with this subject induces me to make the request of you that you will kindly prepare for the Finance Committee an analytical statement, showing first the law of 1890 that regulates tobacco taxation, as well as license; second, the law of 1894, and third, the effect of the proposed measure in its alterations of the pre-existing statute. In this connection, I would be glad if you will have the committee furnished with statements of the revenue collected on leaf tobacco, as well as on other tobaccos under the laws of 1890 and 1894. The proviso of Section 59 of the Act of August 28, 1894, (28 Stat., 509) to wit: "That farmers and growers of tobacco who sell leaf tobacco of their own growth and raising, shall not be regarded as manufacturers of tobacco," etc., has been construed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, as I am advised, to apply only to those farmers and growers of tobacco who sell leaf tobacco of their own growth and raising and deliver the same by their own hand. If this be so, and I believe it is, I would be glad if the committee could be referred to copies of any opinions given, by any law officer of the government to that effect. I cannot myself see that the right of farmers and growers of tobacco, who sell leaf tobacco of their own growth and raising, to be not regarded as manufacturers, is in any sense a personal privilege to them. They have the right as citizens, if it be not taken away from them, by law to sell and handle their tobacco as they please. This right is not the personal privilege of a citizen, but the right of citizenship, inherent in free men; and when a law defines who manufacturers are, and does not comprehend this class of persons as manufacturers, they merely continue in the enjoyment of natural rights; unimpaired and unimpeded by our law. The subject being dealt with is one of great interest to the tobacco growers of my own state, as well as your own, and indeed to tobacco growers in the United States, everywhere. The fact that while the prices of all commodities have been steadily growing up, the price of tobacco as a farm product has been going down, is one that of itself demonstrates that it is now being grown and sold under conditions which operate powerfully to the prejudice of the agricultural interests. It is my desire to co-operate with you and others who wish to see that interest have a fair show to abolish any statute, whatsoever, that contributes to aid those who seek to monopolize and appropriate to themselves the profits that arise out of tobacco.

Yours very truly,

(Signed.) JOHN W. DANIEL.

The Country Teacher.

A maiden once of certain age, To teach a school did engage.

She was thinking how much fun 'Twould be to see the children jump and run,

At her command—but ah! alas! Did you ever hear of sass?

That's what was hers on left and right, And she was provoked enough to fight.

She taught on for a month or more, And then she felt heart-sick and sore; For when one of her pupils would say

"Mamma, may I stay at home to-day?"

Of course each mamma would say yes, dear,

Whene'er you wish to—do not fear; I want my child to have an education rare,

So that your mother the praise may share."

Teacher taught for a few months longer,

But her courage grew no stronger; For one by one the pupils quit,

And left poor teacher alone to sit. But she has heard somebody say

That she's teaching only for the pay, And if she goes there, rain or shine, She'll get her money all the time.
